

Studies in Nepali History and Society

CONFIDENTIAL PEER REVIEW

Please answer all questions in depth and return this to the SINHAS editor who requested you to do this peer review. The editors of SINHAS may share the contents of your report with the author after removing obvious signs of identity. Your name will not be revealed without your permission.

TITLE:

- 1. In the main, scholarly articles either present new or little-known material, usually the result of recent research, or contribute to a new understanding of familiar material by treating it in an original and stimulating manner. Does this paper do either of these things successfully enough so that specialists or professionals in the author's field would welcome its publication?
- 2. Would you say that the scholarship that went into this work is Excellent Very good Adequate Inadequate
- 3. Does this manuscript have a clear argument? Is this argument well developed? Is the paper structured and written to substantiate the argument?
- 4. Do you know of any competing works? If so, please comment on their comparative strengths and weaknesses.

5. How would you rate the importance of this work both for its theoretical contributions and for Nepal Studies?

6. What is your overall recommendation? (If none of these categories seem appropriate, please feel free to frame your recommendations in your own language.)

- Strongly recommend publication (it is an outstanding work)
- Recommend publication (it is a good or useful work and should be made available)
- Recommend publication only if revisions are successfully made
- Do not recommend publication

7. If the manuscript needs revisions:

Do you consider the manuscript important enough as a contribution to knowledge to justify the amount of work (on the part of the author and the editors) needed to revise it properly? In your opinion, is the author capable of making the necessary revisions? What are your general and specific suggestions for revision?

8. May we reveal your identity to the author?

- Yes No

Date

Name